

myfarewellnote

myfarewellnote is a web application that allows you to prepare personal messages for your loved ones that will only be read once you have passed away.

You build messages within a secure application that only you have access to. Choose whether to create the messages using text, photos (video option is coming soon) and upon your passing, the messages are released to the person you wish to receive the message.

If you are ready to join the growing number of people setting up a myfarewellnote gift for their friends, family and loved ones, then go to myfarewellnote.com and get started. There's no better time to start while you have the chance.

- ③ Log in to a private app and create a message to leave to your loved ones after you pass away.
- ③ Once you set up a note you can amend or add to it as many times as you like free of charge.
- ③ Your notes are 100% confidential
- ③ Your note is only released 3 weeks after the recipient requests to view it, provided that you are no longer there to stop the request
- ③ Pricing couldn't be simpler. It's a maximum of £2.84 per recipient followed by a renewal total of £2.00 per year regardless of how many recipients you have.

A farewell note written by soldiers and kept privately on the internet will appeal to many people, as they are in control of it, can alter it whenever they like, and very importantly can add or subtract photographs to what they have written.

I think it is a very good idea.
